Manager Commentary

China equities have continued their good run since Chinese New Year. Both onshore and offshore markets have notched up gains of more than 15% (USD) since early February. The improved market performance is due to a number of factors. First, the decision in January to mobilise the 'national team' through significant buying of onshore ETFs provided a significant confidence boost. The Q1 results season has also been reassuring with a number of high profile 'beats'. While top line growth has generally been muted as expected, tighter control of costs has fed through into improved bottom line profitability. Alongside the improved earnings picture has been a notable increase in dividend payouts. These have been spurred by a recent regulatory push towards enhanced corporate governance. From a fundamental perspective, there certainly appears to be room to increase dividends in China. The overall dividend payout ratio of around 30% is relatively low in a global context, despite the high levels of cash on many corporate balance sheets. China equity market rallied in April as investors starting to see signs of earnings inflection in the country on the back of strong 1Q24 GDP numbers as well as continuous economic support by the local government. US Equity market posted negative returns in April due to combination of higher-than-expected US March CPI print, lower than expected 1Q24 US GDP as well as recent war escalation between Israel and Iran which sent oil prices above USD90/barrel level.
