Manager Commentary

LQ45 rose +1.87% in June, rebounding from 2 months of weakness. Foreign investors remained net sellers during the month, offloading USD222m of equities. Rupiah saw selling pressure as investors were worried about Indonesia's fiscal plan during President-elect Prabowo's upcoming term. Telco and tower companies saw strong buying interests as the market finds the sector's steady growth attractive. On the other hand, e-commerce names were once again under pressure as competition in that segment remains fierce. On the macro front, the country's May trade surplus increased to USD2.9b on the back of strong exports growth. Metal and ores were the drivers behind the improvement. In the recent credit policy meeting, Bank Indonesia (BI) maintained the benchmark rate at 6.25%. The Central Bank continues to emphasize its focus on currency exchange and inflation stability. It also foresees Rupiah to stabilize below Rp16,000/USD. Inflation remains well under control with a June month-on-month deflation of -0.08%. Based on our market trend and fundamental assessment, the overall market outlook of Indonesian equities remained in negative territory during June. In the model portfolio, overall equity exposure was maintained at around 57% by the end of June. The equity portfolio outperformed the benchmark in the month of June. The underweight positions in the material sector contribute to the bulk of the outperformance.
