Manager Commentary

China equity market rallied further in May as recent fiscal support by the local government on the country's property sector increased investors' confidence that China could post strong economic growth going forward. US Equity market rebounded in May due to combination of lower-than-expected US job market prints as well as in-line US inflation report, which resulted in market pricing in the possibility of rate cut by the Fed in 2H24.

Equity markets in Asia Pacific rose modestly over May. In Japan, equities advanced overall, but gains were capped by rising bond yields and growing speculation that the Bank of Japan may raise interest rates to help stem the sharp decline in the Japanese yen. Economic data was a mixed bag. The Japanese economy shrank more than expected in the first quarter. Services activity also slid to 53.6 from April's 54.3, but manufacturing activity rose to 50.5, indicating that the sector was expanding for the first time in a year. China markets were also mixed, with H-shares outperforming A-shares. The key event in China in May was policymakers stepping up support for the embattled property sector. We view the combined measures – including reduced downpayment ratios, cuts to mortgages rates, and funding for local governments to buy unsold homes - as representing the biggest nationwide property easing since the property turmoil started close to three years ago. Elsewhere, Australian stocks closed the month slightly higher, though a rising CPI print raised concerns that the Reserve Bank of Australia may keep rates high for longer. Taiwan equities were lifted by robust gains from chipmaker TSMC, but South Korean shares lagged, with Samsung Electronics announcing weak earnings. In ASEAN markets, Singapore rallied the most, but stock markets in Thailand, the Philippines, and Indonesia lost ground as early gains were eradicated by declines later in the month.
